

There is felt in this country a need of postal savings banks, and for two years the question has been before Congress. It was hoped that a bill creating such institutions would pass last winter, but for some reason which can hardly be explained, the several bills then lying in the hands of Committees, received but little or no attention. The country demanded postal savings banks—banks similar to those in successful operation in England; and if the right kind of a bill had been introduced, and its passage pressed with the same energy and spirit with which the silver bill was passed, it would have become one of the most popular measures in Congress. But the measure seemed to lack friends, at least it wanted champions and found none, and the matter dropped. The crash of savings banks in the East, and the numerous suspensions in the large cities in the West, have made postal savings institutions a necessity. Secretary Sherman in his annual report, proposes a plan "to facilitate the investment of small savings in Government bonds." This is better than no law at all on the subject. His plan is simply to pass a bill authorizing the issue of bonds in denominations as low as ten dollars, bearing 3 1/2-100 per cent interest, and making the postmaster's agents for their sale. This would give many poor persons an opportunity to invest their small savings in these bonds, and it would also enable the Government to call in a large number of its six per cent bonds.

The proposed scheme of Secretary Sherman's is a good one as far as it goes, but it is not exactly the thing to meet the wants of the laboring classes. England's postal savings system is the best ever devised, for the reasons that it is absolutely safe, and that it furnishes the wages-earning classes institutions "very similar to our savings banks in their convenience without their risk and hazard." Some time ago we gave a description of the workings of postal savings banks in England and Canada, and showed wherein they were much better than the system proposed in any of the bills then before Congress. Sherman's plan of issuing bonds in denominations as low as ten dollars is a good one, and will not interfere with the postal savings scheme similar to that which is working so satisfactorily in European countries. What the people need is perfect security when they place their earnings in banks, and the regular postal banks will give them this, and beside it will afford all the convenience of an ordinary savings bank. If some member of Congress desires to benefit the people of this country and to receive the thanks of the nation, let him devise, and cause to be put into practical operation, a postal savings scheme.

THE PRESIDENT AND THE REPUBLICANS.

Judging from the reports received from Washington, there is a very kindly feeling now existing between the President and nearly all the representative Republicans in Congress. This has been brought about by various influences, and no doubt from this on there will exist between President Hayes and the party leaders friendly relations which will honor the gentlemen and strengthen the party. Conkling, who has been one of the President's bitterest enemies, was so handsomely endorsed by the Republicans of New York at the late election, that he is content to bury the hatchet, and will no longer array himself against the President as he did last winter. Blaine knows enough to know that hostility to the President and his peculiar views, can result in no good to himself or the cause of the Republican party, and he too, will quiet down and let the President rest in peace, so far as he is concerned. This is the feeling of nearly all the foremost Republicans in Washington, and the prospects are that harmony will be one of the principles of the party. The present condition of national affairs, and the disturbing element of the Democratic party, make it necessary for the Republicans to be united and have but a single aim in view—to legislate for the best interests of the country. The return of national prosperity by continuing an honest currency, and the enforcement of the resumption act, depend upon the Republicans, as the Democrats as a party have pledged themselves against these important measures. If the affairs in the South shall ever be investigated and the guilty punished it will be through the work of the Republicans, as the Democrats do not denounce the violence and frauds in the Southern States, neither are they willing to enter into an investigation, or to have the guilty punished. For these reasons, Conkling, Blaine, and the rest of the Republican leaders, propose to unite their forces and influence to work for the best interests of all classes.

A dispatch from Washington to the New York Herald is authority for the statement that "Democratic Senators have determined not to oppose Mr. Blaine's resolution for an investigation committee to inquire into alleged violations of the federal election laws, and interference with the rights of voters. They will only ask to have it amended so as to make the inquiry general and applicable to all the States and not to certain Southern States alone, and it is understood that Mr. Blaine will accept this amendment. There is a good deal of feeling among the New York Democrats here about the arrest of voters in the city on election day, which, it is charged, intimidated a great number of persons legally entitled to vote, and kept them from the polls, and was designed to produce this effect, and inquiry into this matter will be demanded under Mr. Blaine's resolution." The Republicans are prepared to investigate the Southern frauds, and the Democrats can attach as many amendments to Blaine's resolution as they think fit. Those who are clamoring for the destruction of the Indian Ford dam laid a proposition before the Board of Supervisors of Jefferson county, to appropriate $1,000 to test the validity of the present height of the dam. The Board refused to appropriate the $1,000, the scheme being defeated by a vote of 19 to 11. It is a wonder that even eleven men on the Board voted for such a measure. To fight the Indian Ford dam, is to strike a blow at the water power interests of this State; and the idea that a County Board of Supervisors entertained for a moment, a proposition to make the county a party to such a nefarious scheme, is amazing. The Chicago Tribune says the report is current that Mrs. Hayes will step over the color line this winter and invite Mrs. Senator Bruce to her receptions at the White House, and remarks that "the fair sex is in a terrible way about it." It would be a very great pity indeed if some of the upper ten of Washington society were compelled to attend a reception at the White House and there meet so accomplished a woman as Mrs. Bruce. They may know how to dress and to stick up their noses at negro blood, but Mrs. Bruce knows how to display intelligence and solid womanhood under all circumstances.

The Little Rock (Ark.) Gazette appreciates the situation in Washington, and very bluntly puts it in this way: "The Democratic party controls the House, the Southern Democratic members control the Democratic party in the House. The Southern Democrats, consequently, are responsible for the action of the House. They should, therefore, boldly assume that responsibility, elect their Speaker, organize their committees to suit them, and then proceed to business."

OBITUARY.

Death of Prof. Stephen H. Carpenter of the State University.

Special to the Gazette. MADISON, Nov. 7.—Our city was horrified, this morning, at the news by telegraph, of the death of Prof. Stephen H. Carpenter, of the State University, in charge of the Department of Logic and English Literature, at Geneva, New York, of diphtheria, at five o'clock this a.m. Prof. Carpenter left here a week ago to attend the funeral of his brother who died at Geneva of the same disease. Prof. Carpenter has been connected with the State University for a number of years and was greatly beloved by our people. His death has cast a deep gloom over our city.

A fire here this morning destroyed a small barn in the second ward. Loss small.

RESUMPTION TALK.

The Secretary of the Treasury Hopeful of Success—No More Gold Certificates—Gold Speculators Disarmed.

Special to the Inter Ocean. WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—In conversation with your correspondent today, Secretary Sherman spoke very hopefully of the financial outlook. He had assurances that the opposition to resumption had ceased on the part of Congress, although well aware that the majority would be quick to throw obstacles in the way if anything could be accomplished. He thought even the more ultra of the soft money men were ready to help him with the "experiment," as they called it. He thought Congress would grant his few recommendations in behalf of resumption. He should want a few more clerks at the New York Sub-Treasury to pay out gold as fast as called for, so there would be no obstacle to fully carry out the resumption programme. The Secretary does not allow himself to doubt the permanent success of resumption. He is, in excellent spirits, and closed the conversation by referring to the encouraging fact that $1,500,000 of 4 1/2 per cent were sold to-day.

New York, Dec. 6.—Secretary Sherman's order to the Assistant Treasurer to issue no more gold certificates is working with great satisfaction to the friends of resumption, as those who want to hold gold must henceforth guard it for themselves, and as after January 1 the New York, Philadelphia and Boston banks will decline to hold gold on special deposit, the would-be gold speculators are anticipated and disarmed so completely that it is not believed they can embarrass resumption in the least degree.

FIRST DEGREE.

Is the Verdict in the Murder Case of Sagstetter, at Oshkosh.

OSHKOSH, Dec. 6.—The trial of Sagstetter, the wife murderer, was resumed in the Circuit Court this morning. The courtroom was crowded even more than the day previous with curiosity seekers. The defense closed their case after hearing the testimony of several witnesses, including the defendant. The former detailed their knowledge of the homicide, and the latter attempted to show that the shot was fired when he was suffering from great mental excitement. The attorneys on both sides summed up their arguments just before noon, and the judge charged the jury. At 12:30 o'clock the jury retired.

After being out four hours a verdict of murder in the first degree was returned, the prisoner being recommended to the mercy of the Court. Sagstetter was not visibly affected by the announcement. Judge Pulling will probably sentence him to-morrow.

CRITICISM.

Of the House Bill Reducing the Salaries of Foreign Ministers.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Among prominent officials there is much criticism of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, for preparing a bill for introducing the salaries of foreign ministers. Those who have tested the matter by experience, say that the present salaries are as low as will properly support the dignity of the positions. The committee propose to reduce first class missions to $15,000; second class to $8,000 and $10,000, a reduction of about 25 per cent. The members of the committee say, however, that government expenses must be reduced to hard pan basis, even if a fragment of dignity is sacrificed.

The strike at the Chicago stock-yards still continues. If the strikers are not careful they will strike off from 25 to 50 cents per day from the wages they have been receiving. These strikers very frequently kick the wrong way for the strikers.

Orville Grant, brother of the General, has been released from the State Lunatic Asylum of New Jersey, and has gone home. Fast living, wild speculations, and the excitement caused by the General's rapid advancement, drove Orville to insanity.

The exports to the United States for November as verified at the United States consulate at Hamilton, Canada, were $112,975.30, and for the year ending September 30, were $1,500,000. Hon. Frank Leand, consulate at Hamilton gives us these figures. The articles which were exported in the largest quantity were barley, $17,425; peas, $5,201; wool, $13,332, and wheat, $57,065.

ORATORS AND ORATORY.

Prof. William Matthews did a good thing for the young men of this generation, when he wrote "Getting On in the World." He pleased, amused, and instructed a very large class of readers, when he gave us his "Great Conversers." He served the public well when he published "Words; Their Use and Abuse," and he gained many admirers, surrounded himself with a larger circle of literary friends than ever before when he wrote and gave S. C. Griggs & Co. to publish, "Hours with Men and Books," two chapters of which—Thomas DeQuincey, and the Illusions of History—are worth more than the price of the book. Now he has given us "Orators and Oratory," which is a grand work. It is a mine of wealth, a store-house of rich things, a book which every person who speaks, or whoever expects to speak, in public, or who is interested in hearing speeches, lectures, or sermons, should read carefully. It is a delightful reading from beginning to end, and is as valuable as it is delightful. In the whole range of literature regarding orators and oratory, there is not another book which contains so many good things. His chapters on the trials of orators, and American orators, are remarkably interesting and valuable. It is worth two dollars to read what Prof. Matthews says of Patrick Henry, Henry Clay, Daniel Webster, Rufus Choate, and John C. Calhoun, and that wonderful English orator, Henry St. John Bolingbroke. The book is handsomely gotten up by S. C. Griggs & Co., Chicago, whose works in style of manufacture, equal those of any firm in this country. (Orators and Oratory. By William Matthews, LL. D. 12mo. pp. 450. Price $2.00. Janesville; James Sutherland & Sons.)

ANNIE M'KEENE.

A Guerrilla in 1863, a Sister of Mercy in 1878—How She Gave Her Life Away to the Cause of Sweet Charity.

Sister Celeste, who died in New Orleans while caring for the yellow fever sufferers, made a strange confession before her death, which has just been made public through the St. Louis Post. In 1863, Quantrell's gang of guerrillas stopped at her father's house in Missouri to gorge their horses. Quantrell was invited to take dinner with the family, and his officers were invited to come with him. One who went was John M'Keene, in courage or stature the peer of any man in the command, and one of the great guerrilla chieftains' most trusted counselors. He had become famous for daring deeds as well as handsome appearance.

Sister Celeste was then a girl of seventeen years old, and rather pretty. Her eyes were blacker than an Indian maiden's, and as piercing, and her hair was as straight—a type of women well known to those who lived in Western Missouri in those troublous days. She made flags, large and small, which she gave to those other neighbors who went out to fight. She had made herself a dress of red velvet. Any sort of rebel soldier was to her a sort of demigod. The wild insanity of the times found in her a splendid representative. Her name, young as she was, had been spoken throughout half a hundred counties. She was known at every federal post in the State, and the authorities had often threatened to banish or imprison her. As a woman, she was notorious as John M'Keene was a man. They had heard of each other many a time, and had longed to see each other. He had said she was the bravest woman in Missouri; she had said he was the bravest man of all the rough riders of the border. Consequently when they met at her father's table it was a cordial meeting, and each was more than pleased.

As the sun went down Quantrell and his men rode away; as they passed along in front of the house Annie stood at the gate and received a salute from each one. Then it was that she wished more fervently that she was a man that she might go along. Shortly after Quantrell's band had left her father's house, a number of armed men rode up, called her father out, shot him down and burned his house for his hospitality to the guerrilla chief. She and her mother fled, while the men who had killed her father went the chase of the band. Quantrell was overtaken, there was a sharp fight which resulted in the defeat and disbandment of the guerrillas. John M'Keene returned to the ruins of the homestead and learned the whole story. He met her and the two pledged their vows of eternal vengeance. There was more than that. She said she would do with him and deal the blows of death as he did. On horseback they went to a humble preacher's house, and without alighting, had him make them man and wife. She threw away her woman's dress and donned a male attire. She put on a belt besides and two revolvers, and her long hair she tucked under her hat. On a June morning, 1863, as they, with half a dozen others, were riding along over the prairie near where now stand the little town of Lee's Summit, they were met by a detachment of the Seventh Missouri state militia. There was a desperate encounter, in which John M'Keene was shot dead and Annie M'Keene was shot through the shoulder. The others of the guerrillas escaped. When the federals came up to where M'Keene and his wife were lying, one of the soldiers leveled his revolver at the head of the woman in disguise, but before the trigger was pulled she threw off her hat, snatched her long hair down, and sat up before him with the face of a woman. The revolver was put up, and the mystery solved. She told them that all she had lived for was gone, but that she was ready to die for her husband. She begged them to give her companion the best burial they could, and said she wanted to go to Kansas City. There was a tone of voice and a style of earnestness about what she said that touched the hearts of the rough soldiers, and they buried John M'Keene out on the broad prairie; but there was not a stone nor piece of wood within a half dozen miles of the place, and nothing was left to mark the place of the grave. But it was such a burial as many a poor man did not have in those days.

Annie M'Keene was taken to Kansas City, where she recovered under the blessed care of some Sisters of Mercy. She went to Memphis, Tenn., and there joined the Catholic church and resolved to devote her life to the care of the sick and the distressed. She became a Sister of Mercy, went to the front of the army, and during the remainder of the war was unremitting in her love and mercy. After the coming of peace, she went to New Orleans and became attached to the convent of the Sisters of Mercy. In devotion to her mission there was not one that surpassed her in earnestness. She was always ready to bear the heaviest burden and manifested the fortitude in a good work that she had in a reckless guerrilla warfare as the wife of John M'Keene.

She bore the secret of her life well. It was a memory that had grown sacred by her expiation, and around it was the sweet incense of a thousand prayers that had gone up out of a soul of tears.

When the late epidemic came on she was among the foremost to go to the bedside of the stricken and dying. She watched by day and by night—as faithful a nurse as ever saw the spark of life go out. Not only with her hands did she aid the suffering, but in words as well did she give strength to many a poor heart. Thus she labored and thus she fulfilled the sacred duty of her life. Father of Mercy claimed the Sister of Mercy as his own. Annie M'Keene, of 1863, was the Sister Celeste whose death is announced in the notice at the head of this article.

A Problem Long Since Solved.

How to remedy those profligate causes of disease an impoverished circulation and an impaired digestion, was a problem the solution of which had often baffled medical skill, but which was solved over a quarter of a century ago by the introduction of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters to public and professional notice. Since that time, which may well be said to have initiated a new epoch in the history of medicine, the remedy and preventive referred to has obtained a foothold in the confidence of the American people that each succeeding year has only served to strengthen.

It is recognized throughout the Union as a tonic of the first order, a remedy for and sure means of preventing fever and ague, and disorders of the stomach and bowels; as a reliable means of reforming a disordered state of the liver, and of counteracting a tendency to rheumatism, gout, urinary and urinary disorders, decided liver.

—Go to Croft & Sherer's, first, when you want anything in their line.
—McClernan & Co. are receiving lots of new goods for the holidays, call and see them.
—A man who hasn't any quarters cannot of course make any change, but he ought to.
—If you wish to buy a handsome Christmas gift call at Mosley's and make your selections.
—A lively flier named Heffron has been engaged to drill the drum corps of the Janesville Guards.
—Rev. Mr. Sewell's residence is No. 12 Locust street, and not at the corner of Terrace and Bluff streets.
—Mosley Bros. have displayed on their counters the finest 5 cent lot of holiday goods ever brought to the city.
—The largest and best line of perfumery in the city, at Croft & Sherer's.
—The best winter wheat flour in the city is the St. Louis Rose. For sale by James Clark & Co., one dollar and forty cents per sack.
—Miss Ellen De Bann entertained about thirty of her friends last evening at the residence of Mr. J. W. Sale. A most enjoyable season was the result.
—Mr. George M. Farham, of Chicago, special agent of the Traveler's Insurance Company, and one of the best specialists in the west, was in the city to-day.
—Rev. J. L. Jones last night delivered in Whitewater his lecture on "The Cost of an Idea." He met with a cordial reception, and more than pleased his auditors.
—The Green County Reformer notes the fact that "Janesville had quite a civilized appearance last Friday." That's the way it strikes any Monroe man, no matter what day of the week it is.
—The Musical Club will meet at Miss Battle's music room on Monday evening. Miss Helen Brane will read an essay on the History of Music and some choice instrumental and vocal music will be rendered.
—J. H. David, the well known Kentucky stock man, is in the city again greeting his many friends and acquaintances. It always looks like business to see him around.
—Dr. O'Leary gave a wise talk to the men last night. To-night he has a word to say to the ladies, and the men will have to stand shivering on the sidewalk until the lecture is over, or else let the ladies go home alone.
—Mark Honeysett, of Footville has a three year old steer which weighed 1940 pounds, over a month ago. He is a bright red, and a beauty. Scarcliff takes him for Christmas. Mark is accumulating some fine short horn stock.
—There is some hope of getting a quorum for the Council meeting next Monday, provided the water-works advocates promise not to allude to that issue. If that issue is to come up, the Aldermen will continue to play hide and go seek.
—The Temple of Honor propose to make their coming annual entertainment the most enjoyable one ever given under their auspices. What they undertake is always pushed to a complete success, and that will be the result in this enterprise.
—Hon. Frank Leland, Consul at Hamilton, has been spending a day in this city. Mr. Leland is filling his position with ability and to the satisfaction of all, and his many friends here are always glad to personally congratulate him on his success.
—Messrs. A. & F. Sonneborn have some thing new to say to the public, and the Gazette readers should peruse their advertisement. The Sonneborns continue to push trade along in a lively manner, and are offering prices which are well worthy of attention. Now is the time to get warm, durable clothes, and those contemplating a purchase should remember Sonneborn's establishment. A great variety of goods for the holidays are also always kept in stock.
—Mention was made some time ago that there were new revelations in the case of Isaac Myers, tried and acquitted at Monroe on the charge of rape. He together with Frank Barnham stand now with subordination of witnesses. On the examination Frank Wagner and Tom Clemmons swore that Myers hired them for $20 each to testify at his trial. Myers has been held in $2,000 bonds. Barnham has been discharged, and Wagner and Clemmons have been held in $1,000 bonds.
—An aged pilgrim called on Uncle Sam last night and wanted a night's lodging in jail and a hot feed, saying he was out of money. Uncle Sam consented and after giving him his supper, searched him before locking him up for the night. TROUBLE WITH TRAMPS.

A body of about thirty ragged, bleary-eyed, and beggarly tramps boarded Charlie Smith's freight train last Thursday night, and took possession of a box freight car. One of the brakemen went to the door as the train stopped at Milton and in very emphatic tones told them to vacate. They very coolly informed the audacious brakeman that if he didn't quit bothering them they would cut him up into mince meat. The brakeman concluded that discretion was the better part of valor and left. Conductor Smith next appeared on the scene and laying his "pop" on the threshold of the door told them he would give them one-half minute to climb out. They climbed. One bolder than the rest remarked that he had "a good notion to draw his shooter on him," but Smith told him to draw if he wanted to, but it would be his last draw. The gang scattered and the train went on its way.

Friday morning about fifteen or twenty of the tramps hung around Milton, and began a begging tour for grub. One of the gang stole a pair of boots that were hung out in front of John S. Harvey's shoe shop and laid them in the straw at the stock yards. Agent Tomkins and Richard Smith saw the thief hide the boots, and they were recovered. The thief then changed coat and hat with another member of the gang, and skipped out, and by the time a warrant had been issued, could not be found. About ten o'clock the gang divided, a portion of them going towards Whitewater and the others west. This is the largest body of "vags" that have struck Milton this season.

VINNIE McCULLOCH'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of little Vinnie McCulloch, only son of Mr. and Mrs. John McCulloch, took place yesterday afternoon at the family residence. A large number of sympathizing friends, including all the attaches of the Gazette, with which Mr. McCulloch is connected, were in attendance. The services were conducted by Rev. T. P. Sawin, who read appropriate passages of scripture, offered an earnest and sympathetic prayer and presented some comforting thoughts and lessons drawn from the sad event which had thus called these friends together. A quartet consisting of Mrs. H. A. Smith, Miss Fannie Lyon, Mr. D. D. Bennett, and Dr. M. A. Newman sang appropriate selections. At the close of the services Vinnie's little classmates took their last look at their little friend, it being one of the most touching incidents of the sad occasion. A similar opportunity was given the other friends, and the sorrowing procession wended its way to the cemetery.

GUILTY OF BURGLARY.

William Lee, one of the fellows who burglarized Lawrence & Atwood's hardware store, and who took a change of venue to Waukesha, was tried yesterday. It was his intention to go there and plead guilty, hoping that he would get a lighter sentence, but for some reason changed his mind, and concluded to put the authorities to as much trouble as possible. He therefore called for witnesses, made the court furnish him a lawyer in the person of Mr. Parkes of Oconomowoc, and commenced the fight. His defeat was a complete rout. District Attorney Sale made no argument, and his own lawyer, concluded it was useless to waste words. The Judge followed suit, and tossed the case into the jury box. In thirteen minutes a verdict came back finding the accused guilty. In view of these facts Lee has concluded to take up his residence in Waupun.

ATTORNEY'S ARGUMENTS.

The Circuit Court to-day was in session only during the forenoon. Mr. Fethers completed his argument in favor of the defendant, closing at 11 o'clock. Mr. Bennett who is to give the closing speech in the case, being in poor health to-day, it was deemed advisable on account of this and other circumstances to adjourn until Monday morning at 9 o'clock when Mr. Wiggins will present his argument for the defense, and Mr. Bennett will close the case. The adjournment disappointed many, there being a number present from Milton who were anxious to hear the closing speeches and who will be unable to be here Monday.

The criminal calendar will be moved next Tuesday morning, and the Mack murder trial will probably be entered upon then.

A CARD OF THANKS.

Mr. and Mrs. John McCulloch desire to express in these columns their sincere thanks to those who so sympathetically rallied about them during the dark hours of the illness and death of their little son, and for the many kindly services which were rendered so willingly. They give this expression of gratitude, not as a mere formality, but because it comes from the heart as surely as have these many acts of kindly sympathy, which have served so greatly to console and cheer and brighten at a time when the light seems to have gone out of the home. To one and all these helping friends, they give earnest thanks.

QUICK WORK.

November 16th an invoice of Haviland's China left Lamages, France, arriving in New York via Steamer St. Lawrence, and to-day it is opened and on exhibition at Wheelock's Crockery Store. It is of Wheelock's own importation, new shapes, and the finest ever offered for sale in this city.

THE SNEEL CASE.

Justice Balch's court room this morning was packed with auditors who were sandwiched in as snugly as sardines. They seemed the moral carrion of a rape case, and flocked thither in swarms until there was hardly any chance for the Justice, the prisoner, the officer, and the attorneys to get even a foothold. The crowd though was doomed to disappointment. Jim Snell, the accused, was on hand but the State asked for a continuance on the ground that the District Attorney had too much business on hand to attend to it. Adjournment was consequently taken until one week from to-day, and the crowd tumbled down stairs again. The only bit of consolation which the disappointed one could find was the privilege of watching the seven-footed prisoner as he was led to jail by the officers.

MISS PATTEN AT MADISON.

Last Thursday evening at Madison was given the ever popular cantata of Queen Esther. Miss Dollie Patten, of this city personated Esther. She is a favorite singer here, and her many friends will rejoice to learn that she captured the Madison folk, though that is no more than those who know her best, expected. The Madison Journal says:
Miss Dollie Patten, of Janesville, personated Esther, the beautiful Queen, with most excellent taste, and her rendition of the part was received with great favor. Miss Patten is justly considered one of the most accomplished vocalists in the West, and her first appearance in Madison amply justified the verdict. Her costume was tasteful and elegant, and her voice is a very sweet soprano, evincing a high degree of cultivation. The management were fortunate in making such an excellent selection for the leading part of the oratorio.
The Democrat in speaking of the same entertainment says:
Miss Dollie Patten, as Esther, the Queen, was of course the centre of attraction, and she sustained her part with an air of mingled grace and dignity befitting her station. Possessed of a fine voice, which easily fills the hall, she held the rapt attention of the audience whenever she appeared on the stage.

A WAR ON THE PRICE OF HALE'S COUGH CORDIAL.

I regret very much that within the past few days there has been such a cutting of the price on Hales' Cough Cordial. I was reluctantly compelled to put up a fifty cent size, as many who wished to purchase the medicine could not afford to spend a dollar. With the issue of this size came the war on the price until the druggists have been selling it far below the cost. The one who were the cause of the trouble have now arranged difficulties satisfactorily, and all of the druggists have agreed to sell at the usual prices—50 cents and $1 per bottle.
Respectfully,
ORANGE WILLIAMS.

Do Stop That Cough!

Why in the world don't you go to the drug store and get a bottle of Hales' Cough Cordial and cure that cough, which is wearing you slowly, but surely, out? We don't ask you to take any chances on this remedy. If you have not tried it we urge you to get a bottle, and if after using one-half of it you find that it is doing you no good, you can return it and get your money back. S. E. Waterhouse, of Mazomanie, writes: "Three doses cured our little girl of one of the most obstinate coughs. We would not be without it! Price 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. dec2dwf

Mrs. Sarah A. Elliott.

Authors of "Mrs. Elliott's Housewife," Oxford, N. C. writes: "I was among the first that used the 'London Hair Color Restorer' in this section, and recommended it to M. & C. A. Sauer, of York, Va., as the most beautiful hair dresser and preserver I had ever seen. I was advised by an eminent physician to use it. Since doing so, it has proved so satisfactory in restoring and beautifying my hair, as well as strengthening my eyesight, that I have recommended it to the druggists here in Oxford, Raleigh, and a great many of my friends, and believe I have from what others say, caused it to have a wide and extended sale, and desirably so, as it certainly is the most cleanly and effective hair restorer now before the American people. The 'London Hair Color Restorer' can be obtained at all the leading druggists at 75 cents a bottle, or $4 for six bottles. j30dowdwy-4
